

What Is Homeowners Insurance Declaration Page?

The declaration page of an insurance policy contains all the relevant information about the insurance plan.

A declaration page enlists the detailed information of the homeowners insurance plan upon buying insurance coverage.

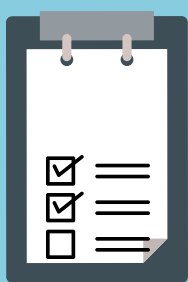

The page mentions the summary including insurer name, agent name, property location, policy number, policy type and personal information.

This page also mentions the premium of the insurance such as the upfront cost of the plan.

The page provides details about the type of coverage bought and the deductibles to be paid by the insurance holder.

The bottom of the page lists all the optional coverage and endorsements as well as discounts, if any.
